Senator McBanyea has introduced a resolution in the Senate, with a view to the purchase. by the State, of valuable public documents which are not to be found in the State Library or any public office of the Government. When the cap itol was burned, many years ago, the books and public documents contained in the library were destroyed. The journals of the Senate and House of Representatives, from 1792, up to the time nt the burning, including, in all, nearly forty volumes; and the journals of the Constitutional Conventions of 1792 and 1799, were lost, and have never been replaced. Nor is there any hope of finding them unless in the private library of the late Capt. SAM. DAVIESS, who went to much trouble and expense to collect every book and document relating to the legislative history of without them, and every effort should be made to procure a complete set. The honor of the State demands that we should have in our State Libra ry every public document connected with its history, and especially the official records of its Leg islatures and early Conventions. These old doc uments are a part of the State's history, and as they are already very scarce, every year that is allowed to pass without making an effort to collect them, and making provision for their safe in Me. Ed. Cox's paleontological observations preservation, increases the chances of their total loss. Other States have incurred great expense scribed by Mr. Ed Cox under the name of A. rec to preserve the political and legislative records of their early history. Pennsylvania, New York and other States, have appropriated immense sums for these purposes, and the collectious which they have made--specimens of which can be seen in our Library-show how careful they are to preserve the materials with which to write their history.

The journals of our State Legislature, and of the Conventions of 1792 and 1799, embrace a very important and interesting period in the history of our State, and are associated with the names and acts of some of our greatest men. Duty to them -a prnper regard for the memory of these men who laid the foundation of our State, and illustrated and sustained its early history-duty to ourselves and our posterity, every consideration of State pride, all demand that we should rescue and preserve among the archives of our State these important records. They are an important and necessary part of our State history, and should, by all means, be in our State Library. 11 not now secured by the State, there is every reason to fear that they will become scattered and lost. And hereafter when the future historian of the margin of the basin. For instance, the of Kentucky scarches for the records of its Leg islatures, and of the great men who performed so important a part in its history, these documents will be missing. We have yet had no history worthy of the State, its people, its statesmen and heroes--it is yet to be written -- and no paper, no document, no record should be lacking, which would in any degree throw light upon any part

Geological Survey of Kentucky.

[CONCLUDEO.]

In a corresponding geological position in Penn sylvania, a sandstone of very similar character occurs; but the shaly space between it and their great cannel coal horizon is often as much as seventy five to one hundred feet, embracing two beds of coal of one to one and a half feet.

MONDAY,.....JANUARY 18, 1858. Coal No. 3, above the foregoing described and tone has only been observed, as yet, satisfactority in Union county, under the name of the "Ice-house coal." The paleontological characters of the roof of this coal are, up to the present time, only very imperiectly ascertained. It is, as we have shown in the previous volume*, a coal perhaps better adapted for manufacturing iron than any Commonwealth put up in wrappers ready for of the coals in the lower five hundred leet of the mailing, at two cents a piece. Orders left ut the measures, more especially as its hard grey shale root encloses, where it has been opened, good bands of iron ore, of which an analysis is given on pages 57 and 58 of the first Geological Report. The bed of coal in Pennsylvania corresponds to this coal, judging, however, at present, only from order of superposition, appears to be quite a per sistent bed of excellent quality, usually about three feet thick, but thickening to eight feet on Broad Top Mountain.

The paleontology of the roof of coal No. 4 seems to be better defined, at present, by its losil plants, than any of the coals of the Western Coal Field. They are considered by M. Lesque eux to be indentical in species with those found in Pennsylvania, over the coal that underlies the Mahoning sandstone, and in the roof of the Pome-rov coal of Onio. Stuce M. Lesquereux left Kentucky he made a visit to Ohio for the special purpose of investigut ing the true geological horizon of the Pomeroy coal, and has now fully satisfied himself that it is properly placed below the Mahoning sandstone, and that it is the equivalent of the Giger bed, No. 4, of his report of Western Kentucky. Un fortunately, M. Lesquereux did not get a view of fully attended, and that the watch fires of the Coal with two clay partings, in the Curlew the American party will be made to glow with renewed brightness throughout the W. of the Ohio river; but there is little doubt. when its paleontology is investigated, that it will prove to be the same bed; the superposition of this bed in the series, the clay partings, the underlying Curlew limestone, and its position below the Curlew sandstone, the second principal mass of hick sandstone, above the conglomerate, all tending to predict this as its true geological posi-tion, and it so, then the Curlew sandstone is ou the geological horizon of the well known Mahoning sandstone of Pennsylvania, which marks the ase of the "Barren Coal Measures" of that State, where it is, sometimes, a conglomerate or peb

Above this sandstone, in Peunsylvania, there are upwards of four hundred feet of strata ex ending up to the bettom of the Pittsburg coal, in which only thin beds of coal occur that are not workable, and hence are denominated "Barren Coal Measures." In the corresponding space in the Western Coal Measures of Kentucky we find a marked difference. In the space of three hun-dred and forty feet above the top of the Cur lew sandstone we have three good coals, varying in thickness from three to five leet each; and one of them is one of the most reliable coals in the Western Coal Field of Kentucky, and the two others are, at least locally, workable, one being three feet and the other lour feet. These coals ie in the space from the Main Muliord coal, No, to the top of the Curlew sandstone.

The Western Kentucky Coal Field can, thereore, hardly be said to have any true Lower Bat

Most of the organic remsins hitherto observed in the roof of this coal are much mutilated, and difficult to refer, specifically, to their proper place, nence the paleontological evidence in the geological horizon of this coal is still indefi nite, but it probably represents one of the thin coals of the Barren Coal Measures of Pennsylva nia, and, according to recent observations, by M Lesquereux, the Heiger's coal at Athens, Ohio. Coal No. 7 is but a thin and rather imperfect seam, yet is of importance in a practical point of ness and qualities of its coal, while almost every view, on account of the black band horizon which hill in Greenup affords more or less iron ore, altmarks. Interstratified in its shale roof is a lark, heavy całcareo ferruginous bituminous rock, affording, locally, black band ore. This geolo No one can fail to appreciate the value of these important documents. Our library is incomplete ter still remains undetermined. There are also narine shells in some of their layers, but those volume, besides ten plates of organ Munfordiensis.

Nothing has, as yet, been obtained from the oof of the water or well coal No. 8 The hard black slabby shale over No. 9, or the main Mulford coal, is often vastly rich in shells. particularly a species of Avicula, which was at first relevred to A. papyracea, but which is un doubtedly a distinct species, from the straight talateraria. As yet these shales have onty yield ed to the paleontologist small Colomities, mentioned in M. Lesquereux' report. The remains of fi-lies are also irequent in the shales over this coal, but no marked difference has yet been ob

It was supposed at first that No. 9 coal would prove to be the equivalent of the main -Pittsburg l, but the pateontological investigations his have not confirmed this supposition, but rather tend to prove that it is a coal still higher in the series than the main Mulford, according to recen oscivations in Pennsylvania, by M Lesquereux

No. 10 coal that intervenes between this coal and No. 11, referred to in the former report, as the "middle coal," is not every where present in the Western coal field. It usually lies about forty to filty feet under No. 11, and sixty to seventy feet above No 9.

All these coals which have been enumerated, from No. 1 to No. 12, lie in the space between ne Anvil sandstone and the conglomerate.

Where the Coal Measures are well developed as near the valley of the Ohio river, in Union county-the soace, including the above coals. From No. 1 to 12, between the top of the couglomerate and the Anvil sandstone, is about uine hundred feet. We must be prepared, how ever, to find this space, locally, very much re luced in thickness, especially in some portions paleontological evidence rather goes to show, at present, that the coal with clay parting, sixty feet below the top of the hill below Hawesville, is the equivalent of No. 11 coal of the preced r series, and if so, the corresponding Coal Me isures are reduced here, on the eastern margin of the western coal basin, to two hundred and sixty or two hundred and seventy feet; and from reports which I have seen of the coal in the townships of Wethersfield, Austin, and Canfield, n Sumit and Stark counties, in Ohio, I am dis posed to believe that there the same Coal Measures will be found to be contracted to nearly the same dimensions; and in some of the rich which occupy so prominent a part in its political | Coal Measures of Hopkins county, the thick history. The general boundary of the Eastern Kentucky coal field is described in the first chapter of the third volume, on pages 27, 25, and 29.

Speaking of the lower heds of coal, of this ield, we find the following interesting remarks: The lowest coal, lying between the base of the ouglomerate and the sub carboniferons lime one, will probably be found of workable thick ness along the greater part of its range throug Rowan, Bath, Estill, and Madison counties — It can generally easily be discovered by the al dirt, streaks of fire clay, or springs of water, at appear some fifteen or twenty feet above the surface of the sub-carbonilerous limestone sually be found a valuable bed of iron ore of the imonite and carbonate varieties, reposing imme liately on the upper surface of the sub-carbonif erons limestone, conforming with its elevation nd depressions; in this respect, differing entirely

The Coal Measures, in Morgan county, have been lurther explored, since the appearance of the first volume, especially on the Elk, Caney, and main fork of the Licking, as high as West Liberty. Ample and full details of all the soils, minerals, ores, rocks, &c., so far as analyzed, will be ound in the able, laborious, and voluminous Reort of Dr. Robert Petea, the Chemical Assistnt to the Survey, and general remarks on the ame subject, will be found, not unly in the chapter on Agriculture, already designated, but in Dr. D. D. Owen's Report, in chapters three and four, of both the second and third volumes.

The details of the Topographical work are comprised in the Report of Mr. S. S. Lyon, the Topographical Assistant to the Survey, illustrated by numerous sections and diagrams of the strati fication of the coal measures in Hopkins and Greenup counties. That Report supplies a great amount of useful local information to the inhabitants of these counties, and exhibits their wonderful productiveness in coal and iron nres. Hop kins county has proved to be one of the richest counties in the State in the extent, great thickternating in coal measures.

The following extract from the concluding remarks of Dr. Owen's Report, shows the present condition of the Survey; what has been done, and what still remains to be accomplished:

Every county in the State has now received a general geological examination. The detailed urvey has been extended over Union, Hopkins Greenup, and part of Hancock, a small portic f Crittenden, Christian, Carter, and La The base line will, it is hoped, be extended, b o one hundred miles from the mouth of High and creek, in a due east course through the

If we were in possession of a correct geographcal map of the entire State, the geological data now collected would enable me to lay down, with approximate general securacy, the boundaries of he different formations, but not all the meander of the same, except in the counties which have eceived a special geologico topographical sur field it is now only necessary to connect the surevs on the confines of Hopkins and Muhlenbur with those made this season in lancock, through Muhlenburg, Ohio, parts of Butler, Edmonson, danco with the principle of popular sovereignty, and Breckinridge counties. This might danco with the principle of popular sovereignty, and must be satisfactory to men of all parties that may be wanted. The ladies are respectfully accomplished in the course of two years more, and all sections." with sufficient force.

To complete the outline of the eastern coa field, from the surveys on the edge of Greenu and Carter, to the Tennessee line, through Carter, Morgan, the edge of Bath, Montgomery, Es ill, Owsley, Madison, Rockcastle, Laurel, Pu aski, Wayne, and Clinton, would require a long r period, because the distance and area reater, and the country much more difficult to survey, and more mountainous.

In the further prosecution of the Geological survey, there is no doubt that the first and most mportant work to be done, is the further exten sion of the lines defining, topographically, the precise boundaries of her two coal fields, and sur veying, simultaneously, the beds of coal and iron ore lying adjacent to those lines. Next in order hould come the filling up of the topographical Coal No. 1, from the Ohio river, near the mouth viess, and the portions of Ohio, Muhlenburg, and of Tradewater, extending back, south, with an easterly tending curvature, through Union, Hopkins, the northern confines of Christian, through Union, Hopkins, Indiana, Indiana belonging to the sub carboniferous, Devonian, Upper, Lower Silurian, extending through the nties of Lewis, Fleming, Bath, Montgomery Estill, Madison, Garrard, Lincoln, Casey, Russell, Cumberland, Taylor, Marion, Larue, Nelson, Bullitt, and Jefferson. These are the counties which require especially to be topographically surveyed, in order to be able to construct a relia ble geological map of Kentucky, one of the great alterior objects of the survey

The base line is now carried entirely across the restern coal field, affording now, not only a basis of departure for all surveys to start from, in Henderson and Daviess counties, but the means, also, of closing and connecting any surveys already commenced, or which may be undertaken n the western coal field.

A short time will sulfiee to carry that line into the eastern coal field, where it can be taken up by the eastern corps and carried across that field, or the attainment of the same objects in that istrict of the State.

In the two hundred and two soils, sub-soils and under clays collected from different geological formations, which have already undergone a hemical snalysis, and are reported in this and he two preceding volumes, Kentucky has already indoubtedly done more towards obtaining a jus thowledge of her agricultural resources, than any State in the Union. There remains, however, much to be done, even in this department of the survey, as there are between forty and fitty counties from which either the analyses cannot b completed in time for this report, or from which soils have yet to be collected and placed in the hands of the chemist. Further, in many of the counties from which soils have been collected, and he chemical analyses reported, there are often several other varieties of soils that should be an alysed, in order to give a complete insight into

he agricultural character of the county.

Besides the soils now on hand, ready for the abors of the chemist, there are from sixty to onundred specimens of ores, coals, limestones marls, &c., that still remain in the chemical de partment of the survey at Lexington, besides robably as many more recently collected, and no nced in the chemist's hands

In the paleontidogical department of the sur ey, including the very important investigation nunected with the identification of coals by the organic remains in their shaly roofs, only a commencement bas yet been made. My own time has been so fully occupied in field and genera office work that I have been able, as yet, to de vote but very li tle time to the specific determin ations of the many new species of organic re mains which have been collected. Before the can be labeled, classified, and placed in the State paleontological investigation. Templates of in portant and interesting genera and species will appear, and be described in this volume; of these e lossil plants have been studied and described by M. Leo Lesquereux; the crinoieda by Sidney S. Lyon, and the Coal Measure molusca by Edard T. Fox. The two latter gentlemen I have aided occasionally with counsel and opinion where doubt and dilliculties have arisen, but oth twise my duties have not permitted me to share

The correspondence of the Geological Survey Kentucky, which I have had personally to at end to, has already become a business which en roaches largely on my other duties. To render the Geological Survey of Kentucky complete and generally useful work, all that vill then be in a condition, when the country be omes older, richer, and the lorest is cleare away, to be connected with an extended trigo nometrical survey, which all the States of th Juion will undoubtedly ultimately receive, upo Idan somewhat similar to the ordinance surve England, a work, which, in the present cond tion of the country, is impracticable, without ur outlay beyond the means of its present popula

Those who will give theso volumes a careful ad attentive perusal must be impressed with the vast amount of labor in the field, office and laboratory, which must have been necessary to accomplish so great a work, and caunot fail to consider these Reports as amongst the most practically useful documents to the Commonwealth of Kentucky, that have ever appeared; and bespeak, no only the skill, energy, untiring industry, and sys tematic arrangements, which have been brought to bear on euch Department of the Survey, but Two beautiful copper-plate maps, the one of also the enlightered manner in which it has been conducted, and the members of the Geological
